THE NEWS OF THE CAPITAL

ALL THE IMPORTANT HAPPENINGS IN AND AROUND WASHINGTON.

Secretary Stanton Given Credit For the Authorship of the Famous Dispatch "We Will Fight It Out on This Line if It Takes All Summer"—Other Items.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—An ex-general of the Union army, in an interview, claims that the famous dispatch: "We will fight it out on this line if it takes all summer," was not originated by Gen. Grant, but by Secretary Stanton. According to the general's story, very discouraging news was being received from the front and something had to be done to restore confidence and re-assure the people.

Secretary Stanton, as a means to this end, telegraphed to Grant to send some encouraging news, and at the same time advised and wrote out the form of dispatch to be transmitted in response to his suggestion. The dispatch had a more powerful effect than its author even supposed it would. It gave heart and encouragement to the people of the north, and was a potent factor in the following presidential campaign, when Mr. Lincoln was re-elected.

Senate.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Several petitions from Ohio posts of the Grand Army Republic, praying for the passage of the dependent pension bill over the veto, were presented and laid on the table.

Mr. Beck presented a memorial, signed by himself, for the repeal of the navigation laws, to the end that Americans might be able to own ocean steamship lines. He asked that it be referred to commerce committee, which was agreed to. He would ask to be heard by that committee. He also had referred with his memorial an extract of a late speech of Count Von Moltke, before the reichstag, showing that war was inevitable.

"A Timely Warning."

New York, Feb. 21.—The Tribune gives prominence to an article signed "Republican," this morning, calling attention to the fact that the Republican senate has thrown one hundred million dollars in the shape of appropriations for coast defenses, war ships, etc., into the lap of the Cleveland administration. ### House.

Nothing Definite.

When the jury had announced their verdict the prisoner, Unger, was called upon to stand up, and the judge, in a few remarks, sentenced him to twenty years' imprisonment, with hard labor. Capt. ### DYNAMITERS DEED.

An Attempt to Blow a Michigan Man Into Eternity.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Feb. 21.—At an early hour yesterday morning an explosion which awoke everybody in the village occurred at Otsego, Allegan county. Immediately the streets were filled with people thronging to the scene, which was found to be the store and dwelling of Albert R. Foster.

Dynamite cartridges had been exploded under the building, which completely wrecked its west side and injured S. D. Foster's store, twenty feet west. The foundation of the former was completely torn asunder, and the siding, studding, ceiling, lath and plaster torn off and hurled many feet distant. Its heavy timbers were thrown against S. D. Foster's store, crashing in the side, breaking the glass front and ruining the contents. The contents of A. R. Foster's store are a mass of broken furniture, drug fixtures, and goods thrown in all shapes, broken and worthless.

In the building at the time three men were sleeping, none of whom were injured more than being terribly shaken up. It is thought the dynamiters are enemies of A. R. Foster, as the cartridges were placed on the sill of the building directly under his bed room, but he happened to be sleeping in another part of the building. A reward has been offered by the village authorities for the arrest and conviction of the dynamiters.

Serious Toboggan Accident.

CHICAGO, Feb. 21.—A young woman named Hattie Orme met with a serious accident at a toboggan slide in this city last night. She started to ride down, and insisted on guiding the toboggan, claiming to fully understand the art of steering. The sled became unmanageable, and went over the side of the chute, carrying its passengers in its fall of thirty feet to the ground. In her descent the girl struck an electric light wire, which tore a frightful gash across her face. A physician took thirty-one stitches in sewing up the wound. Besides this, the unfortunate girl's right arm was fractured in three places, and the flesh was torn from her left arm, exposing the bone. ## WAR ALMOST INEVITABLE.

SEMI-OFFICIAL STATEMENT THAT THIS IS THE RUSSIAN BELIEF.

The Czar, When It Comes, Will Preserve Liberty of Action—He Will Not Actively, But Will Morally Support France. France Fortifying—Cable News.

ST. PETERSBURG, Feb. 21.—It is semi-officially stated that in Russian government circles the conviction is gaining ground that war between France and Germany is inevitable. In addition it is said that as a fresh defeat of France might involve disastrous results to Russia, the Czar's government will, in the event of war, preserve entire liberty of action. It will not support France as an ally, but may, by a firm, reserved attitude, prevent Germany from sending the whole of her army west of the Rhine, and, even if France should be defeated, attenuate as much as possible the effects of the disaster.

For these reasons, it is declared, Russia will await the outcome of the different phases of the Bulgarian crisis with the greatest calmness, and act in such a way as to avoid being involved with Austria or England at the moment when France and Germany commence hostilities.

The Reichstag Elections.

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The Prussian provincial governors have issued a circular advising officials of the unusual importance of the coming elections for the reichstag, and urging them to refrain from doing anything that would assist the opponents of the government. The ministers of the other German states have adopted a similar course. The national liberal committee, of Lubeck, sent to Prince Bismarck a copy of a placard posted on the walls of that city by the Progressists, quoting from a pretended manifesto of the emperor the statement that there was no war impending. Prince Bismarck immediately telegraphed a reply, which was placarded throughout Lubeck, stating that the alleged declaration of the emperor was an absolute invention.

Is War Impending?

BERLIN, Feb. 21.—The National Liberal committee of Lubeck sent to Bismarck a copy of a placard posted on the walls of that city by the Progressists, quoting from a pretended manifesto of the emperor the statement that there was no war impending. ### DROUTH STRICKEN TEXAS.

Miss Clara Barton Interviewed on the State of Affairs and Suffering.

WASHINGTON, Feb. 21.—Miss Clara Barton, president of the Red Cross society, has just returned from her visit to the drouth stricken counties of Texas. In an interview she said that the reports which had been sent out were for the most part true. Almost no rain had fallen for eighteen months. Two planted crops had perished in the ground. The people were not starving, she said, but there was great and painful want, dire and sore necessity. The $100,000 appropriated by the Texas legislature was for food alone, and no part of it can be used to buy seed.

Miss Barton believes President Cleveland was right in vetoing the $10,000 appropriation by congress for seed, and thinks if his suggestion that congressmen donate their grant of seed is favorably entertained by members of congress, the object sought to be reached will be more than accomplished. She thinks it a matter for private charity, and hopes to see the generous and charitable do what they can to relieve the distress and suffering which is being borne with such fortitude by the people of the stricken country. The Dallas News, Miss Barton says, will receive contributions of seed or cash and turn them over to duly constituted authorities to distribute.

There were 30,000 bales of cotton in the buildings and the loss is estimated at $300,000, fully covered by insurance. ## MORMON OUTRAGE.

A Ranch and Store Seized in the Name of the Mormon Church.

OMAHA, Neb., Feb. 21.—A private letter from Mrs. A. la Stone, of Tula City, Ariz., to a relative living in this city, brings the first information of an outrageous proceeding by Bishop Lot Smith and his Mormon band, which occurred January 30. Edward Stone and wife went to Arizona two years ago. At a point 200 miles north of any railroad, and not far from Tula, they opened on their ranch a store for the sale of general merchandise. Their neighbors, in large part, were Indians and Mormons, the latter acknowledging as leader Lot Smith, who is charged with being one of the original "Destroying Angels," and with having led in the Mountain Meadow massacre. Mr. and Mrs. Stone, with their two servants, were frequently warned to leave the neighborhood by Smith, but they refused to go.

One evening four men appeared and claimed the store and ranch in the name of the Mormon church, saying the land belonged to them, and they would give the occupants ten days in which to leave. A hired man was at once dispatched to Hubbell's ranch, thirty miles away, for assistance. He did not return that night, and the Mormons learning what was being done, returned in the morning, eighteen strong, and all armed with rifles and revolvers. They took charge of the place at once. Mrs. Stone was alone, the other men also having gone for assistance. She saw them pillage the house and store, packing everything they wanted. Fearing personal violence she made an effort to escape, but was detected by Smith, who followed her at the point of a revolver and compelled her to return to the house.

At this point one of the servants returned with the information that Mr. Stone was coming in as rapidly as possible with ten men. The Mormons promptly captured him, and when Stone appeared with his rescuers, sent word that at the first signs of hostility the two prisoners would be shot before their eyes. The rescuing party camped outside, and after a consultation opened negotiations with the Mormons which resulted in the liberation of the two prisoners, and the relinquishment of ranch and store to the Mormons.

The Gentiles then withdrew and set off for Hubbell's, the nearest habitation. On the way a party of twenty-five Navajoes offered to go back and dislodge the Mormons, promising the support of the entire tribe for that purpose. Because of a fear that the property would be burned the offer was declined. Stone at once set off for Flagstaff, and from there goes to Prescott to ask the governor's aid. The ranch cannot be taken without bloodshed, as Smith can call together at least 200 Mormons who recently left Utah and settled in that locality.

Dissatisfied With the Life of a Nun.

CHILLICOTHE, O., Feb. 21.—Sister Genevieve, late Sister Superior of the convent of St. Francis De Sales, Newark, O., is in the city, the guest of Mrs. C. A. Malone, wife of the district probate judge, of this county. Sister Genevieve refused to be interviewed, but Judge Malone said that she had not escaped from the convent, as had been published. She had notified Father Hayes, he said, that she was going to visit his wife, to await her release from Rome, having forwarded her resignation through Bishop Waterson some time ago. She did not notify the sisters in the convent, and thereby made a mistake. If she had taken formal leave of them the matter would probably have attracted no public attention. She was dissatisfied with the life and circumscribed usefulness of a nun. Sister Genevieve's name is Miss Mary Hewitt, and her home is in Somerset, O., where her relatives are well-to-do people.
